Get Service, Economy and the Satisfaction of Buying Exactly What You Want.

Our success is built upon personal attention and personal selection. We have located and laid out the nursery so that you may see and select every plant you buy. By bringing you and the plants together we save you the cost of salesmen and elaborate catalogs, and give you every chance to choose varieties which please you.

Prices are for stock f. o. b. nursery. Delivery and planting will be charged for at actual cost, and can be closely estimated in advance. Our suggestions and assistance in making landscape plans are free. We make no guarantee except that the plants are healthy and true to name upon delivery to you. It is understood that if you are not pleased with the plants in every way, you may return them at once with no explanation required, and receive your money back.

Evergreens

All Evergreens are sold with a ball of earth tied on securely with burlap. In planting, cut off the rope and leave one layer of burlap around the ball. For Dwarf Evergreens use no fertilizer; for others use a little well-rotted manure or mushroom soil in the bottom of the hole, and mixed with the soil about the roots.

The varieties of evergreens in this list have been chosen for permanence.

Cheaper plants that look well for a time only have been dropped.

You can depend on the usefulness and quality of STYER'S plants. A visit to our nursery will save you money and disappointment.

Azaleas, Rhododendrons and Evergreen Shrubs

This group of plants is prized for its magnificent flowers and the shiny green of its lasting foliage. This vicinity is very favorable for their growth, and many thousands are being planted every year.

The difficulties that home owners meet in growing these plants may be removed easily. First, they should be planted only where they have reasonable protection from sweeping dry winds. Any building, shrubbery, group of evergreens, or fence will be sufficient.

Second, the soil must be acid. The soils of the vicinity are naturally acid and are good if not limed. Third, the soil must have good natural drainage; if it is a heavy clay, then sand should be mixed in under and about the roots up to about 25 per cent. Fourth, the plants must never lack moisture, even in winter, because they have root systems almost directly on the surface. When they are planted, granulated peat should be mixed into the soil around the plants where the roots will spread out, and a two-inch layer of the peat should be placed on top of the ground above the roots as a mulch.

In addition to the above precautions, plants should not be used which have been grown in poor soils or collected from the wild state. A heavy solid mat of roots in rich soil and peat is a necessity. Our stock is so perfect in this respect that you may select from it at any time with safety, even while the plants are in bloom.

A visit to STYER'S NURSERIES in April and May will convince you.

Bush Arbutus, Abelia grandiflora. Almost the only shrub which is "everblooming" from midsummer to frost. Leaves remain all winter. Large bush, graceful, small pink flowers.

Flowering Shrubs

These are inexpensive but beautiful plants to frame the flower garden, surround the "Outdoor Living Room," or take the stiffness out of groups of evergreens. They should be selected to give a succession of bloom through the season.

After they are in full leaf they should be dug with a ball of earth, and for this an extra charge of 25 cents will be made.

These shrubs are pruned and grown to make large plants the first year. Don't compare them with the "whips" sold over the counter in packages. It is not the height but the number of branches that counts.

Roses

It is our policy to sell roses in pots, so that the plants are well established and in bloom when planted. This is a great help to the buyer who is unfamiliar with varieties. It also lengthens the planting season until midsummer. We take all the chances involved in getting the dormant plants into healthy growing and blooming condition, and see that they are planted in large pots of the right kind of soil.

Roses should be kept well cultivated, fertilized with rotted manure or Vigoro, pruned closely each Spring, and protected from mildew and Japanese beetles as well as possible with the appropriate sprays.

The best reliable varieties of Hybrid Tea Roses ready at our Roadside Sales Office as soon as the plants have made sufficient growth.

Climbing Roses

Along with the garden roses will be found the finest new climbers, Pauls Scarlet, Jacotte (Yellow), Silver Moon (White), Dr. W. Van Fleet (Pink), and Climbing American Beauty (Pink). Also the Everblooming Climbers, the patented Blaze (Scarlet), New Dawn (Light Pink), and Golden Climber (Yellow).

Peonies

The mountains of Tibet, which have produced the hardiest of plants, have sent us nothing hardier than the peony. In the forty years we have been growing peonies at Concordville, we have not had one plant on which the bloom was affected by cold weather. The plants are healthiest and perform the best in exposed positions where they freeze the most. In addition, the peony has no insect enemies, and requires neither spraying, pruning, watering, nor transplanting.

Peonies should be planted after September 1st and before April 1st while they are dormant. They prefer sunny, dry soil. They should be planted with the top-most buds of the crown just two inches below the surface. Each plant needs an area three feet square. The soil should be sweet, not acid.

The plants should never be mulched as they like bare soil and must freeze in winter. They may be fertilized with Vigoro or thoroughly rotted manure, but only after they are two years old. They should be kept free of weeds and grass.

When cutting peony flowers, three leaves should be left on the stalk to insure growth through the summer.

This is a partial list of our collection.

The varieties have proven the most useful and popular for this section, and we can recommend them as garden and cut-flower favorites.

Irises

There is no better way to select irises than to see them in bloom. Our nursery is laid out conveniently. The iris season is late May and early June.

The German irises are quick-growing inexpensive flowers with a great range of color. They may be planted the year around, will grow anywhere except in a swamp, and do not need much attention. They are fine for extremely dry places.

Place the rhizome on top of the soil and cover the roots. The rhizomes must be out in the sun. Do not water. Thin out after three years to no more than the original planting.

We recommend the use of masses of a single variety rather than mixtures, and will make special prices on quantities.

The following list of irises are 35c each and $2.50 per

Alcazar, Violet and reddish-purple.
Ambassadeur, Purple-maroon.
Asia, Lavender-purple.
Ballerine, Pearl-blue and violet.
Gold Imperial, Yellow.

Siberian Iris, Perry's Blue

A real sky-blue iris. Plant the rhizome three inches deep. Likes water. Each 20 cents.

Perennials, Hardy Border and Rock Garden Plants

We maintain a well-assorted, carefully-grown collection of these plants, and endeavor to keep fine specimens of all in pots at the Roadside Sales Office. This is the most satisfactory way to handle this class of plants and you will be pleased with the healthy, neat condition of the stock.

Styer's Mushroom Soil

A manure compost, with all the richness of fresh manure, but which will not burn plants nor interfere with cultivation.

Disappears like magic. Odorless. Best fertilizer for grass. Fine for gardens. ~~Nominal prices by~~ bushel or truck load.
